INTRODUCTION

In Québec, the Election Act stipulates that a new delimitation of the electoral divisions shall be made after every second general election. Since the last delimitation was completed in 2001 and two general elections have been held since then (namely in April 2003 and in March 2007), the Commission de la représentation électorale began making the new delimitation of the electoral divisions.

Within the twelve months following the last general election, the Commission must submit to the President of the Québec National Assembly, pursuant to the provisions of the Election Act, its preliminary report in which it proposes a new delimitation of the electoral map.

This report is divided into two parts. Part One begins by explaining the mandate and the composition of the Commission. It goes on to recall the stages leading to the publication of the final delimitation of the electoral divisions in the Gazette officielle du Québec. Finally, it presents all of the criteria that the Commission must respect as well as the tools and resources put at its disposal.

Part Two describes the electoral division delimitation proposal. A brief history of the electoral maps of 1980 to 2001, the main stakes, the general context and the reasons having led the Commission to propose this new electoral map are also presented.

Lastly, the delimitation proposal is presented, region by region. For each of the regions, the demographic context, the proposed changes and the detailed description of the electoral divisions are given.

THE ELECTORAL MAP IN QUÉBEC

I. THE COMMISSION DE LA REPRÉSENTATION ÉLECTORALE

1.1 The Commission's mandate

In a democratic system of the representative type, the delimitation of electoral divisions is of vital importance. It contributes to ensuring the best possible representation of electors. The Commission de la représentation électorale is an independent body, which reports directly to the National Assembly. Pursuant to the Election Act, the Commission's main mandate is to draw up Québec's electoral map.

Another mission of the Commission is to ensure the application of the chapters of An Act respecting elections and referendums in municipalities as well as those of An Act respecting school elections, which basically deal with the division of the territories at the municipal and school levels into electoral districts and electoral divisions. Finally, the Commission carries out any other mandate that the National Assembly may entrust to it.

In the discharge of its duties, the Commission acts in a neutral and impartial manner. The Commission's neutrality and impartiality are assured, among other things, by the commissioner appointment method, which requires the approval of two-thirds of the Members of the National Assembly. The Commission's decisions are final.

1.2 Composition of the Commission

The Commission is chaired by Mr. Marcel Blanchet, Chief Electoral Officer. It is also made up of two commissioners who must be qualified electors. The appointed commissioners are Mr. Serge Courville, geographer-historian, emeritus professor of Université Laval, and Mr. John Zacharias, geographer and urban planner, full professor at Concordia University. The Chief Electoral Officer provides the Commission, in the discharge of its mandate, with all required assistance, including the contribution of his personnel.

1.3 Stages leading to the adoption of a new electoral map

The adoption of a new electoral map in Québec takes place in several stages, set out in the Election Act. Members of the National Assembly, individuals and organizations are invited to share their opinion by participating in the Commission's work during public hearings. This section presents a summary of these stages.

Preparation of a proposal and tabling of the preliminary report

The Commission prepares a preliminary report in which it makes an electoral division delimitation proposal. It then submits this report to the President or Secretary of the National Assembly not later than one year after the second general election following the last delimitation.

Holding of public hearings

The Commission must hold public hearings in various regions of Québec. Indeed, the Election Act stipulates that within six months of the tabling of its preliminary report, the Commission de la représentation électorale shall hear the representations made by Members of the National Assembly and interested individuals and organizations. This stage is crucial since the public consultation allows the Commission to find out their point of view and to obtain additional information. The preliminary report is then submitted to the Committee on the National Assembly for consideration.

Afterwards, the Commission de la représentation électorale examines all of the representations made and endeavours to take them into account while respecting the criteria set out in the Election Act. If the Commission deems it necessary, it can hold other public hearings in one or more regions of Québec to hear the representations of Members of the National Assembly, interested individuals and organizations on one or more proposals to amend the preliminary report.

Analysis of the new report by the National Assembly

After having heard and examined the representations of Members of the National Assembly, individuals and organizations, the Commission must table in the National Assembly a new report indicating the delimitation of the electoral divisions. Within five days following its tabling, the report shall be the subject of a debate limited to five hours, which must be held in the National Assembly.

Final establishment of the boundaries of the electoral divisions

Not later than the tenth day following the debate in the National Assembly, the Commission shall establish the boundaries of the electoral divisions and assign names to them. The list of the electoral divisions is published in the Gazette officielle du Québec.

The new electoral map comes into force upon dissolution of the National Assembly. However, if this dissolution occurs before the expiry of three months from publication of the new electoral map in the Gazette officielle du Québec, the general election must be held according to the previous delimitation, namely that of 2001 in this case.

2. LEGISLATIVE FRAMEWORK AND WORK METHOD

2.1 A guiding principle: the effective representation of electors

The Election Act stipulates that electoral divisions shall be delimited in such a way as to ensure that the principle of effective representation of electors is respected.

Effective representation, which the Supreme Court of Canada recognized in 1991 as being a right that is guaranteed to electors under the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms, is expressed by the electors' ability to have the best possible access to their elected representatives and by the ability of elected representatives to adequately assume their twofold role of legislator and ombudsman.

The equality of the votes of electors is a prerequisite for effective representation. However, this equality may only be relative given that a series of factors of a demographical, geographical and sociological nature must be taken into account to ensure the effective nature of representation.

Equality of the votes of electors

Each elected representative must represent roughly the same number of electors within his electoral division. The Election Act allows for a leeway of 25% either way. Indeed, the Act stipulates that the number of electors of an electoral division must not deviate by more than 25% from the average number of electors per electoral division in Québec. This average number of electors corresponds to the quotient obtained by dividing the total number of electors by the number of electoral divisions. The Commission may, for exceptional reasons, depart from the 25% deviation norm stipulated in the Act if it believes that this departure is essential to respect the principle of the effective representation of electors.

Natural communities

Grouping electors solely on the basis of a numerical criterion would not be enough to guarantee their effective representation. Indeed, the Election Act stipulates that electoral divisions must also represent natural communities. The population density, the relative growth rate of the population, the shape of the region, the accessibility, the area, the natural local boundaries and the territories of local communities are all elements that must be taken into account when establishing the boundaries of the electoral divisions.

In accordance with these criteria established in the Election Act, the Commission has prepared its electoral division delimitation proposal with a view to ensuring the electors of Québec fair and equitable representation.

2.2 The Commission's tools and resources

The work leading to the electoral division delimitation proposal demands a precise knowledge of Québec's territory. It requires the use of recent and reliable data and involves the processing of a large amount of information, notably with the help of adapted computer tools.

To carry out its work, the Commission relies on an experienced team of specialists and analysts in the electoral geography and map-making field. This team's role consists of providing the Commission with all the information required for decision-making leading to the electoral division delimitation proposal.

Permanent list of electors

The Commission uses the permanent list of electors as the main databank when carrying out its work. This list is made up of two registers: the register of electors and the register of territories. The first contains data on all of the electors of Québec. This register is updated using the information provided notably by the Régie de l'assurance maladie du Québec, the Department of Citizenship and Immigration Canada and the Curateur public du Québec.

As for the register of territories, it contains geographical information, including municipal addresses, the road network and the administrative boundaries of Québec. This second register is updated on a regular basis using information from municipalities and from the Ministère des Ressources naturelles et de la Faune du Québec.

With the help of the Chief Electoral Officer's computer systems, these two registers are linked together constantly.

Geographical information system

To carry out its work properly, the Commission also relies on a geographical information system, which incorporates, summarizes and processes all the necessary information. This system makes it possible to obtain data concerning the distribution of electors over a precise portion of the territory and to evaluate the effects of a change to the boundaries of an electoral division. The geographical information system also facilitates the identification of natural communities. It is a spatial analysis tool adapted to the Commission's needs.

A large, bold, white number '2' is centered within a dark grey square. The number is stylized with a thick, rounded font.

I. ANALYSIS OF THE SITUATION

I.1 A brief history of the electoral maps from 1980 to 2001

The Commission de la représentation électorale was created in 1979 following the adoption of An Act respecting electoral representation. Since its creation, the Commission has proceeded to delimit the electoral map on five occasions.

Evolution of the numerical criterion

The numerical criterion has evolved over time. During the revisions of the electoral maps of 1980 and 1985, the minimum and maximum limits as well as the average number of electors per electoral division were determined in the Act and amended at the time of each of the revisions.

Since 1988, the Act has stipulated that the average number of electors per electoral division must correspond to the quotient obtained by dividing the total number of electors in Québec by the total number of electoral divisions. The number of electors in an electoral division cannot deviate by more than 25% from this provincial average. Table 1 presents the evolution of the numerical criterion at the time of the revision of the last five electoral maps.

Table 1: Evolution of the numerical criterion permitted under the Act since 1980

Numerical criterion	Electoral maps	Number of electoral divisions	Number of electors	Minimum limit	Electoral quotient	Maximum limit
Minimum and maximum limits set in the Act	1980	122	4,245,879	24,000 (-31.0%)	34,802 ¹	40,000 (+14.9%)
	1985	122	4,409,276	27,000 (-25.3%)	36,142 ²	45,000 (+24.5%)
Electoral quotients and +/-25% deviations	1988	125	4,576,600	27,460	36,613	45,766
	1992	125	4,670,690	28,024	37,366	46,707
	2001	125	5,339,121	32,035	42,713	53,391

¹ The electoral quotient was however set at 34,000 electors in the Act.

² The electoral quotient was however set at 36,000 electors in the Act.

Electoral map of 1980

In 1980, the Commission made its first delimitation of Québec's territory into electoral divisions. The new electoral map contained several major changes in relation to the old one. Its main objective was to correct the presence of several electoral divisions whose number of electors exceeded the maximum limit permitted under the Act. These electoral divisions were located for the most part in urban areas.

The Commission decided to add twelve electoral divisions in these areas. The number of electoral divisions rose from 110 to 122 for all of Québec. The additions were made in the Abitibi-Témiscamingue (1), Capitale-Nationale (1), Île-de-Montréal (1), Laurentides-Lanaudière (2), Laval (3), Montérégie (3) and Outaouais (1) regions.

Despite these additions of electoral divisions, the electoral map of 1980 still comprised fourteen electoral divisions having an exceptional positive deviation, if one excludes the electoral division of Îles-de-la-Madeleine whose exception status is stipulated in the Act.

Electoral map of 1985

The second electoral map drawn up by the Commission was adopted in 1985. It comprised a total of 122 electoral divisions and made changes to the boundaries of only 33 electoral divisions. After having recognized the general quality of the electoral map of 1980, the Commission made only minor changes to it. With the new maximum and minimum limits permitted under the Act, the electoral map of 1985 contained only five exceptional divisions, two with an exceptional positive deviation, two with an exceptional negative deviation and the electoral division of Îles-de-la-Madeleine, which continued to be an electoral division having an exception status, as stipulated in the Act.

Electoral map of 1988

The Commission completed its third electoral map in 1988. The number of electoral divisions rose from 122 to 125, namely the maximum number permitted under the Act. Three electoral divisions were added to the electoral map: the electoral division of Chutes-de-la-Chaudière, which made it possible to eliminate the highly exceptional positive deviation of the electoral division of Lévis; the electoral division of La Pinière, in the Montérégie region; and the electoral division of Masson, in the Laurentides-Lanaudière region. Despite these changes, the modifications to the map were minor.

The electoral map had only two electoral divisions with an exceptional negative deviation: the electoral division of Îles-de-la-Madeleine, which is stipulated in the Act, and the electoral division of Ungava, which was henceforth recognized by the Commission due to its special geographical characteristics.

The fourth electoral map, namely that of 1992, still had 125 electoral divisions. The biggest changes were made to the Greater Montréal region. Considering the strong population growth of the Laurentides-Lanaudière and Montérégie regions, the Commission added two electoral divisions in the first region and one electoral division in the second. This made it possible to correct the exception status of certain electoral divisions in these regions. To compensate for these additions, three electoral divisions were withdrawn from the Île-de-Montréal region.

The last electoral map was completed in 2001 and continues to be in force. It comprises 125 electoral divisions and the changes made were minor. They are in line with the electoral map of 1992 and were made based on a short-term perspective.

The Commission decided to recognize five exceptional electoral divisions in addition to the electoral division of Îles-de-la-Madeleine. The electoral divisions of Bonaventure, Gaspé, Matane, Matapédia and Ungava were recognized by the Commission owing to their particular characteristics. In addition, two electoral divisions were withdrawn from the Île-de-Montréal region to be added to the Laurentides-Lanaudière and Montérégie regions.

1.2 Purpose of a new electoral map

Several reasons justify a new delimitation of the electoral map. The objective of this chapter is to present the main reasons having led the Commission to propose this new map.

Twenty electoral divisions in an exceptional situation

Based on the electoral population data as of November 30, 2007, the electoral map drawn up in 2001 comprises twenty electoral divisions in an exceptional situation. These are divisions whose number of electors deviates by more than 25% from the provincial average of 45,207 electors. Only the electoral division of Îles-de-la-Madeleine benefits from a special status granted under the Election Act.

Among the other electoral divisions, seven have a deviation of their number of electors from the provincial average above the maximum limit of +25%, whereas twelve have a deviation from the provincial average below the minimum limit of -25%. A map indicating the deviation of the number of electors from the provincial average of the 125 electoral divisions appears at the beginning of this report.

Several electoral divisions are also noteworthy due to their deviation from the provincial average which is situated close to the minimum or maximum limit permitted under the Act. In fact, sixteen electoral divisions currently point to a deviation from the provincial average that is less than 5% from these two numerical limits. These electoral divisions are considered to be in a critical situation. Several of these electoral divisions could see their number of electors quickly exceed the numerical criterion of plus or minus 25% and, in so doing, become divisions in an exceptional situation.

Overall, more than one-quarter of the 125 electoral divisions are in a critical situation, namely in an exceptional situation, which clearly illustrates the inequalities in representation between certain electoral divisions.

Table 2 presents the electoral divisions that are currently in an exceptional situation and the critical divisions, namely those whose deviation from the provincial average is less than 5% from either limit permitted under the Election Act as of November 30, 2007.

Demographic trends in Québec

Following population movements across the territory of Québec and due to the variation in population growth from one region to the next, it becomes vital to re-balance the number of electors per electoral division with a view to ensuring adherence to the principle of effective representation, one of the prerequisites of which is the relative equality of the votes of electors.

For several years now, Québec has been witnessing a shift of its population from peripheral regions to the Greater Montréal region and, more specifically, to the municipalities that surround the Island of Montréal. At the same time, Ville de Montréal has been gradually losing its electoral population in favour of these same suburbs.

This reality may be observed in several electoral divisions of Québec. Six of the seven electoral divisions having an exceptional positive deviation, namely whose number of electors is above the maximum limit of +25%, are located in the rapidly growing regions of Laurentides-Lanaudière, Laval and Montérégie. Moreover, everything points to continued growth in these regions in the future.

Conversely, eleven of the thirteen electoral divisions, whose number of electors is below the minimum limit of -25%, are located in the Abitibi-Témiscamingue–Nord-du-Québec, Bas-Saint-Laurent, Chaudière-Appalaches as well as the Gaspésie and Îles-de-la-Madeleine regions. All of these regions should experience a population growth that is below the Québec average in the years to come. In addition to these regions, there are those of Mauricie, Saguenay–Lac-Saint-Jean and the Côte-Nord which find themselves in a similar demographical situation. In some of these regions, it has become impossible to respect the numerical criterion of the Election Act, owing to the absence of any leeway.

Other population movements have also been observed in each of the regions in recent years. In particular, the rural population of some regions has tended to concentrate around regional poles. For example, most of the small municipalities of the Centre-du-Québec region have seen their population dwindle to the benefit of the cities of Drummondville and Victoriaville. In the Chaudière-Appalaches region, Ville de Lévis is the main urban pole and has attracted a considerable share of the rural population with the passage of time.

Moreover, several other large urban centres of Québec have seen their population leave to settle in peripheral zones. Note may be made of Gatineau and Québec City whose outlying sectors have begun to become highly urbanized in recent years.

Need for a revamping of the electoral map

Over the last few years, several regions of Québec have seen their demographical situation evolve greatly. Among these regions, some witnessed only minor changes when past revisions were made. The electoral map needs to be revamped in its entirety to ensure that the electoral divisions better reflect the new demographical and territorial realities.

As was mentioned in the brief history of the electoral maps from 1980 to 2001, the last “major” revision dates back to 1980. At that time, twelve new electoral divisions were added, including several in the Greater Montréal region. In 1988, two other electoral divisions were added in this region and another one, in the Chaudière-Appalaches region. That year, the number of electoral divisions in Québec rose to 125, the maximum permitted under the Act.

Since then, the population movements from the peripheral regions to the Greater Montréal region, its urban municipalities in particular, have continued and even intensified. In addition, the Island of Montréal has begun to see its electoral population shift towards these same municipalities, resulting in a major increase in the number of electors.

Due to this demographical context, the revision of the electoral maps of 1992 and 2001 entailed the transfer of five electoral divisions from the Island of Montréal to the Laurentides-Lanaudière and Montérégie regions. However, no electoral division was withdrawn from the peripheral regions, despite their constantly declining demographical weight within Québec; a situation that has continued for more than 30 years.

New administrative realities

Over the last few years, several municipalities of Québec have been involved in an administrative reorganization process geared to the amalgamation of their territory. The new municipal portrait notably includes the presence of reconstituted towns and cities as well as boroughs within a city. It should be noted that the Election Act requires that the delimitation of electoral divisions respect natural communities established on the basis of demographical, geographical and sociological considerations, including the territories of local municipalities.

As the process has now been completed, the delimitation proposal seeks to respect wherever possible the new portrait of the local municipalities in Québec. Moreover, the Commission has endeavoured to respect the boundaries of the administrative regions and the regional county municipalities (RCMs).

2. THE DELIMITATION PROPOSAL AS A WHOLE

This delimitation proposal has been made on the basis of the 125 electoral divisions spread out over the entire territory of Québec. Among these electoral divisions, 123 respect the numerical criterion of the Election Act, whereas two are in an exceptional situation. The latter are the electoral division of Îles-de-la-Madeleine, which benefits from a special status granted under the Act, and the electoral division of Ungava, the characteristics of which make inappropriate a grouping of electors sufficient to respect the minimum limit of -25%.

This map proposes 86 electoral divisions whose delimitation differs from that established in 2001. Among the proposed changes, note should be made of the withdrawal of three electoral divisions from within the Bas-Saint-Laurent, Chaudière-Appalaches, Gaspésie and Îles-de-la-Madeleine regions in order to correct the exceptional negative deviation of seven electoral divisions in these regions and also to ensure that three others do not become exceptional divisions.

The addition of an electoral division in each of the regions that surround the Island of Montréal is also proposed. They are the rapidly growing regions of Laurentides-Lanaudière, Laval and Montérégie, which include six electoral divisions having an exceptional positive deviation and several others headed in this direction.

The delimitation proposal also provides for a major revamping of the Estrie–Centre-du-Québec and Capitale-Nationale regions. The aim of these changes is to correct the exceptional situation of certain electoral divisions and to reduce the inequalities in representation. These changes have been made in order to respect the boundaries of the administrative regions, the regional county municipalities and boroughs.

The Commission de la représentation électorale is very much aware of the difficulties that may result from a new electoral map. Nevertheless, it estimates that the current electoral portrait no longer makes it possible to respect the principle of effective representation and in particular the relative equality of the votes of electors. As a result, the proposed changes are necessary. In addition, the Commission has delimited the electoral divisions by paying special attention to natural communities and the characteristics of the various milieus concerned.

Table 3: Numerical data underlying the electoral division delimitation proposal

Number of electors according to the permanent list of electors as of November 30, 2007	5,650,910
Number of proposed electoral divisions	125
Average number of electors per electoral division	45,207
– Minimum limit (-25%)	33,905
– Maximum limit (+25%)	56,509
Number of electoral divisions whose proposed delimitation differs from the current delimitation	86
Number of electoral divisions that are unchanged in relation to the current electoral map (2001)	39

Electoral divisions in an exceptional situation

The new electoral map delimitation proposal provides for two electoral divisions in an exceptional situation, namely whose number of electors does not respect the numerical criterion of the Election Act.

The electoral division of Îles-de-la-Madeleine has 10,600 electors, which corresponds to a -76.6% deviation of the number of electors from the provincial average. This is an electoral division having an exception status, as stipulated in the Act.

For its part, the electoral division of Ungava has 11,990 electors and its deviation from the provincial average stands at -73.5%. The Commission has granted this electoral division an exception status since 1988, pursuant to section 17 of the Election Act. The Commission considers that the strict application of the numerical criterion of plus or minus 25% does not always make it possible to ensure an effective representation of the electors of this electoral division.

While the Commission is proposing a re-delimitation of the electoral division of Ungava by removing a strip of territory located in its southern part, this electoral division retains its exceptional character. Indeed, it covers a vast territory of close to 900,000 kilometres inhabited by a small population dispersed across several points of varying importance. Due to the large distances that must be covered, the absence of road links between municipalities located on the periphery, potential development projects and the possibility of a chain reaction that would adversely impact neighbouring regional fabrics, the Commission has no other choice but to maintain the current exception status of this electoral division.

The detailed description of the proposed electoral divisions of Îles-de-la-Madeleine and Ungava is found in their respective region, in section 3.

New toponyms

The delimitation proposal contains certain changes that have led the Commission to submit new toponyms for certain electoral divisions. There are sixteen such electoral divisions. On this subject, the Commission invites Members of the National Assembly, individuals and organizations to make their comments or suggestions concerning these new toponyms. After having analyzed the representations made during the public hearings and sought the opinion of the Commission de toponymie du Québec, the Commission de la représentation électorale will assign a final name to each of the electoral divisions. Here is the list of the proposed electoral divisions having a new toponym:

Beauce-Amiante	Matapédia-Mitis
Beaupré-Charlevoix	Memphrémagog
Bonaventure-Percé	Nicolet-Bécancour
Côte-du-Sud	Repentigny
Granby	Rivière-du-Loup-Témiscouata
La Plaine	Roussillon
Marc-Aurèle-Fortin	Saint-Jérôme
Matane-Gaspé	Vanier-Les Rivières

3. THE NEW ELECTORAL MAP, REGION BY REGION

The following section provides a detailed description of the proposed changes to the electoral divisions. To facilitate the presentation of these changes, the electoral divisions are grouped by region. Each region comprises a portrait of the situation in which the demographic context and the proposed changes are presented. The detailed description of the proposed electoral divisions complements the electoral portrait of the region.

It is important to bear in mind that the electoral population data used are those of November 30, 2007. The municipalities, Indian reserves and settlements, reserved lands, unorganized territories as well as their boundaries are those which also existed as of November 30, 2007.

It is important to emphasize that when the words “autoroute”, “avenue”, “boulevard”, “chemin”, “côte”, “rue”, “railway line”, “overhead electric power line”, “canal”, “lac”, “fleuve” and “rivière” are used, reference is made to their center line, except where stipulated otherwise. Moreover, when necessary, the description of the boundaries of the proposed electoral divisions is made in a clockwise manner.

At the end of the preliminary report there is a map illustrating the proposed electoral divisions and the changes made in relation to the current delimitation. All of the electoral divisions are shown on the front of this map, whereas enlargements of the most urban sectors appear on the back. A complete list of the current divisions and another of the proposed divisions are also presented in appendices I and II.

3.1 Abitibi-Témiscamingue–Nord-du-Québec

1) Portrait of the situation

Current electoral divisions (2001)	Electors as of November 30, 2007
	Number	Deviation
Abitibi-Est	33,180	-26.6%
Abitibi-Ouest	32,585	-27.9%
Rouyn-Noranda–Témiscamingue	42,634	-5.7%
Ungava	23,819	-47.3%
Provincial average	45,207	-
Minimum limit (-25%)	33,905	-
Maximum limit (+25%)	56,509	-

The Abitibi-Témiscamingue–Nord-du-Québec region comprises four electoral divisions. It is Québec’s biggest region by far. Covered in large part by the electoral division of Ungava, this region spans more than 960,000 square kilometres, representing roughly 60% of Québec’s entire territory. The population is mainly concentrated in two main towns, namely Rouyn-Noranda (30,484 electors) and Val-d’Or (23,472 electors). The Abitibi-Témiscamingue–Nord-du-Québec region is characterized notably by a large Aboriginal presence on its territory. The region is home to seven Algonquin communities, nine Cree villages and fourteen Inuit municipalities.

The region's electoral population has witnessed only very limited growth since 2000. Indeed, the region posted a growth rate of 0.1%, which is below that recorded for Québec as a whole for the same period (5.8%). According to the Institut de la statistique du Québec, this region should enter a negative growth phase in the years to come.

The region currently has three electoral divisions with an exceptional negative deviation. The first two are located in Abitibi-Témiscamingue. They are the electoral divisions of Abitibi-Est and Abitibi-Ouest. The growth rate of their electoral population has respectively been 0.1% and -2.1% since 2000. The delimitation of these two electoral divisions should be re-examined in order to correct their exceptional negative deviation.

The electoral division of Rouyn-Noranda-Témiscamingue has also witnessed a growth in its electoral population that is well below that of the province since 2000, namely on the order of -1.2%. However, its electoral population today remains fairly close to that of the provincial average.

Finally, the third exceptional electoral division is that of Ungava and it deserves special attention due to its unique characteristics. Currently, it has a deviation of the number of electors from the provincial average that is well below the minimum limit of -25%. Its territory covers close to 900,000 square kilometres and no road link serves the part located north of the 55th parallel. As for the part located to the south, which is basically made up of the territory of Baie-James and Ville de Chibougamau, it comprises a few localities that are generally isolated from one another and served by a few rare road links.

The electoral division of Ungava also stands out by its population growth. It is the only electoral division in the region to have posted a growth in its electoral population (5.4%) close to the province's growth rate since 2000, which has been 5.8%.

2) Delimitation proposal

The delimitation proposal for the Abitibi-Témiscamingue-Nord-du-Québec region provides for major changes, which first seek to resolve the exceptional situation that characterizes the electoral divisions of Abitibi-Est and Abitibi-Ouest.

Under the proposal, each of the two electoral divisions would be expanded northward up to the 50th parallel to add a part of the territory located at the southern tip of the electoral division of Ungava. The towns of Chapais and Chibougamau as well as the Aboriginal communities of Oujé-Bougoumou and Waswanipi are added to the proposed electoral division of Abitibi-Est. As for the proposed electoral division of Abitibi-Ouest, it now comprises the towns of Lebel-sur-Quévillon and Matagami as well as certain localities included in Municipalité de Baie-James, namely those of Valcanton and Villebois.

These significant additions allow the proposed divisions of Abitibi-Est and Abitibi-Ouest to have a deviation of the number of electors from the provincial average of -13.3% and -16.4% respectively.

Another proposed change consists of slightly expanding the electoral division of Rouyn-Noranda-Témiscamingue in order to respect the new delimitation of Ville de Rouyn-Noranda. The latter is entirely comprised in the electoral division of Rouyn-Noranda-Témiscamingue.

Moreover, Municipalité de Barraute and a part of the unorganized territory of Lac-Despinassy are added to the proposed electoral division of Abitibi-Ouest with a view to grouping all of the municipalities of the regional county municipality of Abitibi in one single division.

A last change consists of transferring from the electoral division of Ungava to that of Duplessis, in the Côte-Nord region, the unorganized territories of Caniapiscou and Lac-Juillet in order to adjust the boundary of the electoral division of Ungava to the boundary of the administrative region of Nord-du-Québec. This change involves no electors.

Finally, the delimitation proposal for the region includes the presence of an exceptional electoral division. The proposed division of Ungava benefits from a special status that allows it to have a very negative deviation of the number of electors from the provincial average.

3) Description of the proposed electoral divisions

3.2 Bas-Saint-Laurent

1) Portrait of the situation

Current electoral divisions (2001)	Electors as of November 30, 2007
	Number	Deviation
Kamouraska-Témiscouata	34,426	-23.8%
Rimouski	43,110	-4.6%
Rivière-du-Loup	33,843	-25.1%
Provincial average	45,207	-
Minimum limit (-25%)	33,905	-
Maximum limit (+25%)	56,509	-

The Bas-Saint-Laurent region comprises three electoral divisions and the growth of its electoral population has only been 1.8% since 2000. This growth is below that observed in Québec for the same period, namely 5.8%. This population trend was observed in each of the three divisions. According to the Institut de la statistique du Québec, this region should enter a negative growth phase in the years to come.

Among the three electoral divisions of the region, that of Rivière-du-Loup has witnessed the highest growth of its electoral population with a rate of 4.0% since 2000. Nevertheless, the number of electors in this electoral division has not increased sufficiently to avoid this division finding itself in an exceptional situation today. Due to a deviation of the number of electors from the provincial average of -25.1%, changes need to be made to this electoral division.

The electoral division of Kamouraska-Témiscouata has a number of electors that does not exceed the minimum limit permitted under the Election Act with a deviation from the provincial average of -23.8%. Nevertheless, this electoral division has witnessed a decrease in its electoral population since 2000 on the order of 2.4% and is headed toward a similar exceptional situation to that of Rivière-du-Loup.

Finally, the electoral division of Rimouski has posted a growth rate of 3.7%. Its number of electors today remains fairly close to the provincial average.

2) Delimitation proposal

The delimitation proposal for the Bas-Saint-Laurent region provides for a major revamping operation which will mainly affect the electoral divisions of Kamouraska-Témiscouata and Rivière-du-Loup. The proposed electoral divisions have a number of electors that is much closer to the provincial average.

The proposal consists of adding to the electoral division of Rivière-du-Loup all of the municipalities of the regional county municipality of Témiscouata to form the new electoral division of “Rivière-du-Loup-Témiscouata”. This electoral division thus has a deviation of the number of electors from the provincial average of +11.7%.

As for the municipalities comprised in the regional county municipality of Kamouraska, they are added to the electoral division of Montmagny-L'Islet in the Chaudière-Appalaches region. The municipalities of Sainte-Louise and Saint-Roch-des-Aulnaies are also added to this division. The name given to this new electoral division is “Côte-du-Sud”. The deviation of the number of electors from the provincial average of the new division is +12.3%. The description of the electoral division of Côte-du-Sud is presented in the section devoted to the Chaudière-Appalaches region.

Finally, under the proposal, the electoral division of Rimouski would be adjusted to the boundaries of the regional county municipality of Rimouski-Neigette by adding the municipalities of Biencourt and Lac-des-Aigles to the proposed electoral division of Rivière-du-Loup-Témiscouata.

3) Description of the proposed electoral divisions

Minimum limit (-25%)	33,905	-
Maximum limit (+25%)	56,509	-

The Capitale-Nationale region comprises eleven electoral divisions and has witnessed an increase of its electoral population on the order of 6.4% since 2000. This growth rate is slightly higher than the growth rate of Québec, which was 5.8% during the same period. According to the Institut de la statistique du Québec, the population growth of this region should continue at the same pace for a few years.

While the region is mainly organized around Québec City, which accounts for close to three-quarters of the region's electoral population, the population growth has mainly been significant in the suburbs of this city and, to a certain extent, in the former municipalities that today form the first ring of residential development around downtown Québec City.

The electoral divisions of Chauveau, Montmorency and Vanier have witnessed the strongest growth since 2000. They posted a growth rate of their electoral population of 12.9%, 11.4% and 11.6% respectively. With a deviation of the number of electors from the provincial average of +19.6%, the electoral division of Vanier is the most likely division to rapidly approach the maximum limit permitted under the Election Act.

The divisions of La Peltrie and Louis-Hébert also surround downtown Québec City and are in a similar situation. Their deviation from the provincial average is +16.3% and +14.0% respectively. However, the growth rate of their electoral population posted since 2000 has been about 7.5%, which is slightly above the provincial growth observed.

Conversely, the electoral divisions of Jean-Lesage, Jean-Talon and Taschereau, which correspond roughly to downtown Québec City, have experienced a population growth below that observed in Québec since 2000. The growth rates, which vary from -1.3% to 3.0%, have been among the lowest of the region. Nevertheless, the number of electors of these three divisions today remains fairly close to that of the provincial average.

Finally, the Capitale-Nationale region also includes two rural electoral divisions. While the electoral division of Portneuf has posted a fairly high growth rate of 7.6%, which has mainly occurred in its municipalities situated near Québec City, the same cannot be said for the electoral division of Charlevoix. This division is situated on the eastern limit of the region and its electoral population has only increased by 2.0% since 2000. As its deviation from the provincial average is -26.7%, the electoral division of Charlevoix is currently the only one in the region to be in an exceptional situation. As a result, its number of electors must be increased significantly to be closer to the provincial average.

2) Delimitation proposal

The delimitation proposal for the Capitale-Nationale region provides for several changes to the boundaries of the electoral divisions. On the one hand, the changes are meant to improve the divisions whose number of electors deviates too far from the provincial average, as is the case of Charlevoix which is in an exceptional situation. On the other hand, these changes aim, wherever possible, to adjust the boundaries of the electoral divisions to the boundaries of the boroughs of the Ville de Québec.

The first proposed change consists of re-examining the electoral division of Charlevoix to correct its exceptional negative deviation. This division is expanded to the west up to the limits of the Ville de Québec. It now groups all of the municipalities of the regional county municipality of La Côte-de-Beaupré, including those of Boischatel, Château-Richer and L'Ange-Gardien. The six municipalities that make up île d'Orléans are also added. It is proposed to name this new division "Beaupré-Charlevoix". Moreover, it is proposed that the municipalities of Baie-Sainte-Catherine and Saint-Siméon as well as the unorganized territories of Sagard and Mont-Élie be withdrawn in order to include them in the electoral division of René-Lévesque, in the Côte-Nord region, whose number of electors is currently very close to the minimum limit permitted under the Election Act.

The proposed changes for the new electoral division of Beaupré-Charlevoix make it possible to decrease the number of electors of the electoral division of Montmorency, which is experiencing strong growth. The proposed electoral division of Montmorency is thus moved slightly westward and comprises a bigger portion of the borough of Beauport of the Ville de Québec, which is currently in the electoral division of Jean-Lesage. This latter division is also modified and comprises, in addition, the entire borough of Limoilou.

Another proposed change concerns the electoral division of Taschereau. Its boundaries now comprise the entire borough of La Cité. From the same perspective, the electoral division of Vanier is reduced in order to correspond solely to the borough of Les Rivières. The deviation of its number of electors from the provincial average is +14.6%. The name given to the proposed electoral division is "Vanier-Les Rivières".

The divisions of Jean-Talon and Louis-Hébert are also modified. The eastern boundary of the electoral division of Jean-Talon henceforth corresponds to the eastern boundary of the borough of Sainte-Foy–Sillery, whereas its western boundary corresponds to the overhead electric power line that runs alongside much of the boulevard Pie-XII. The electoral division of Louis-Hébert now comprises the Ville de Saint-Augustin-de-Desmaures, which is in the current borough of La Peltrie.

It is also proposed to adjust the boundary between the divisions of Chauveau and La Peltrie so that the number of electors of the electoral division of Chauveau is closer to the provincial average. The municipalities of Saint-Gabriel-de-Valcartier and Shannon are thus added to the proposed electoral division of La Peltrie. This latter division has been restructured along a north-south axis and also comprises the municipalities of Fossambault-sur-le-Lac, Lac-Saint-Joseph and Sainte-Catherine-de-la-Jacques-Cartier.

Finally, the other rural division of the region, namely that of Portneuf, has been re-examined to bring together only those municipalities that make up the regional county municipality of Portneuf. Moreover, the municipalities of Lac-aux-Sables and Notre-Dame-de-Montauban have been transferred to the electoral division of Laviolette, in the Mauricie region.

3.4 Chaudière-Appalaches

Chutes-de-la-Chaudière	51,595	+14.1%
Frontenac	33,285	-26.4%
Lévis	50,733	+12.2%
Lotbinière	33,980	-24.8%
Montmagny-L'Islet	32,057	-29.1%
Moyenne provinciale	45,207	-
Seuil minimal (-25%)	33,905	-
Seuil maximal (+25%)	56,509	-

The Chaudière-Appalaches region currently has eight electoral divisions. It has witnessed a growth of its electoral population on the order of 5.6% since 2000, which is fairly close to that of Québec for the same period (5.8%). However, the growth observed has been quite different from one division to another. According to the Institut de la statistique du Québec, this region should see its population growth level off in the years to come.

The divisions of Chutes-de-la-Chaudière and Lévis encompass the territory of the Ville de Lévis. These two divisions are those having experienced the highest growth of their electoral population in the region. They have posted a growth rate of 13.3% and 10.2% respectively, since 2000. They are also the most populated divisions with a deviation of their number of electors from the provincial average of +14.1% and +12.2% respectively.

The divisions of Beauce-Nord and Beauce-Sud have had a similar or slightly superior growth to that of the province since 2000 (5.8%). These divisions notably include the towns of Saint-Georges and Sainte-Marie. They have posted a growth rate of 7.4% and 5.6% respectively.

Finally, the other four electoral divisions of the region have experienced a growth of their electoral population below that of Québec since 2000. They are the divisions of Bellechasse, Frontenac, Lotbinière and Montmagny-L'Islet and correspond more to the rural part of the Chaudière-Appalaches region. The divisions of Frontenac and Montmagny-L'Islet already have a deviation of the number of electors from the provincial average that is below the minimum limit permitted under the Election Act. As a result, these divisions are in an exceptional situation. As for the divisions of Bellechasse and Lotbinière, they have a deviation of -23.6% and -24.8% respectively from the provincial average. Both are headed toward the same exceptional situation.

Given the presence of two electoral divisions having an exceptional negative deviation and another two headed in the same situation, the Chaudière-Appalaches region currently finds itself in a position where its number of divisions does not correspond to its demographic weight within Québec.

2) Delimitation proposal

The delimitation proposal for the Chaudière-Appalaches region provides for the withdrawal of one electoral division. The purpose of this change is to rebalance the number of divisions of this region in relation to its demographic weight while correcting the cases of exceptional negative deviations and increasing the number of electors of those divisions that are headed in this situation. The number of electors per division is thus closer to the provincial average.

The first change proposed is to add to the electoral division of Frontenac certain municipalities situated in the southern part of the current division of Beauce-Nord, namely those of Saint-Joseph-de-Beauce and Vallée-Jonction. The name that has been proposed for this new division is “Beauce-Amiante”. Other municipalities will also be added in its western part, namely those of Beaulac-Garthby, Saint-Ferdinand and Saint-Fortunat. As for the municipalities of Beauceville, Saint-Alfred and Saint-Victor, they are added to the proposed division of Beauce-Sud.

Other changes are meant to better balance the number of electors of the divisions of Bellechasse and Lotbinière with those of Chutes-de-la-Chaudière and Lévis. It is proposed that the electoral division of Bellechasse include the part to the south of the autoroute Jean-Lesage (autoroute 20) of the current division of Lévis. It is also proposed that the electoral division of Lotbinière include the part to the west of the rivière Chaudière of the current division of Chutes-de-la-Chaudière. This part corresponds to the borough of Chutes-de-la-Chaudière-Ouest.

The proposed division of Lotbinière has been revised to respect in large part the boundary of the administrative regions of Chaudière-Appalaches and Centre-du-Québec. The municipalities of the regional county municipality of Bécancour are thus all part of the proposed division of Nicolet-Bécancour, in the Centre-du-Québec region. As for the majority of the municipalities that make up the regional county municipality of L'Érable, they are grouped within the proposed division of Arthabaska.

Another proposed change concerns the division of Chutes-de-la-Chaudière. It has been restructured along a north-south axis and comprises the municipalities situated in the northern part of the current division of Beauce-Nord. They are notably the municipalities of Saint-Lambert-de-Lauzon, Sainte-Marie and Scott.

Finally, it is proposed to add the western part of the current division of Kamouraska-Témiscouata, in the Bas-Saint-Laurent region, to the electoral division of Montmagny-L'Islet. All of the municipalities that make up the regional county municipality of Kamouraska as well as those of Sainte-Louise and Saint-Roch-des-Aulnaies are grouped together. The name that has been proposed for this new division is “Côte-du-Sud”.

3) Description of the proposed electoral divisions

3.5 Côte-Nord

1) Portrait of the situation

Current electoral divisions (2001)	Electors as of November 30, 2007
	Number	Deviation
Duplessis	36,665	-18.9%
René-Lévesque	34,341	-24.0%
Provincial average	45,207	-
Minimum limit (-25%)	33,905	-
Maximum limit (+25%)	56,509	-

The Côte-Nord region comprises two electoral divisions and covers a large territory of more than 200,000 square kilometres. The two biggest towns are Baie-Comeau and Sept-Îles. In all, they account for more than 36,000 electors, namely just over half of the electoral population of the Côte-Nord region.

The region has witnessed a significant decline of its electoral population since 2000. It has posted the lowest growth rate among the regions of Québec, namely -3.3%. This growth rate is far below the provincial rate observed during the same period, namely 5.8%. According to the Institut de la statistique du Québec, the population of the Côte-Nord region will continue to experience negative growth at a similar pace in the years to come.

Of the two electoral divisions of the region, Duplessis has posted the less small growth rate of its electoral population, namely -2.4%. However, it remains well below that of the province. This division also comprises the biggest number of electors, despite the deviation of its number of electors from the provincial average which currently stands at -18.9%. While it finds itself in a negative growth situation, the electoral division of Duplessis should not see its number of electors drop below the minimum limit permitted under the Election Act over the short or medium term.

The more problematic electoral division is that of René-Lévesque. It has posted a growth rate of -4.2% since 2000 and its number of electors is very close to the minimum limit permitted under the Act. With a deviation from the provincial average of -24.0%, the electoral division of René-Lévesque will find itself with an exceptional negative deviation in the very short term, if no change is made to this division.

2) Delimitation proposal

The priority objective of the delimitation proposal for the Côte-Nord region is to correct the critical situation of the electoral division of René-Lévesque. Given the fact that the electoral division of Duplessis also comprises a small number of electors, the approach favoured is to expand the electoral division of René-Lévesque mainly in its southwestern part.

Under the proposal, the municipalities of Baie-Sainte-Catherine and Saint-Siméon as well as the unorganized territories of Sagard and Mont-Élie, which are part of the current division of Charlevoix, are added to the electoral division of René-Lévesque. The Municipalité de Petit-Saguenay, which is in the current division of Dubuc, is also added. These significant additions allow the proposed division of René-Lévesque to have a deviation of the number of electors from the provincial average of -19.3%.

Another proposed change consists of expanding the electoral division of Duplessis in its northwest part by adding to it the unorganized territories of Caniapiscau and Lac-Juillet, which are currently part of the division of Ungava. The proposed division of Duplessis would thus comprise the entire territory of the regional county municipality of Caniapiscau, which is part of the administrative region of the Côte-Nord. No elector is affected by this change.

3.6 Estrie–Centre-du-Québec

1) Portrait of the situation

Current electoral divisions (2001)	Electors as of November 30, 2007
	Number	Deviation
Arthabaska	48,915	+8.2%
Drummond	56,939	+26.0%
Johnson	43,485	-3.8%
Mégantic-Compton	33,706	-25.4%
Nicolet-Yamaska	34,498	-23.7%
Orford	54,123	+19.7%
Richmond	36,254	-19.8%
Saint-François	45,151	-0.1%
Sherbrooke	48,374	+7.0%
Provincial average	45,207	-
Minimum limit (-25%)	33,905	-
Maximum limit (+25%)	56,509	-

The Estrie–Centre-du-Québec region comprises nine electoral divisions and its electoral population has increased since 2000. This region has witnessed a growth rate of 6.8%, which is superior to that of the province, which stood at 5.8% for the same period. According to the Institut de la statistique du Québec, the population growth will continue in the years to come and should manifest itself more in the Estrie region.

The region is mainly organized around three urban poles: the towns of Drummondville, Sherbrooke and Victoriaville. Representing more than 195,000 electors, these three towns alone account for close to half of the region's electoral population. With their suburbs, these three towns basically correspond to the fastest growing areas of the Estrie–Centre-du-Québec region.

Two of the nine electoral divisions have experienced a growth of their electoral population that is significantly greater than that of Québec since 2000. The electoral division of Drummond, owing to its growth rate of 10.7% and its number of electors, which exceeds the maximum limit permitted under the Election Act, currently finds itself in an exceptional situation. The division of Orford, for its part, has witnessed an even stronger growth of its electoral population on the order of 15.3%. Due to a deviation of the number of electors from the provincial average of +19.7%, this division is headed toward an exceptional situation.

Conversely, four of the nine electoral divisions have had a significantly smaller growth rate than that of the province since 2000. Among these divisions, the electoral division of Mégantic-Compton is currently in an exceptional situation. Since this division has a deviation of -25.4% from the provincial average, its number of electors is below the minimum limit permitted under the Act. Moreover, the electoral division of Nicolet-Yamaska is headed toward the same exceptional situation. It has a deviation of -23.7% from the provincial average and its growth rate of 1.1% since 2000 has been the lowest in the region.

Finally, representations have been made to the Commission de la représentation électorale requesting that the boundaries of the electoral divisions be better harmonized with the boundaries of the administrative regions and of the regional county municipalities of the region. In this respect, the electoral division of Johnson stands out. It overlaps three administrative regions, namely those of Centre-du-Québec, Estrie and Montérégie. It comprises blocks of municipalities from five different regional county municipalities and includes a borough of the Ville de Sherbrooke.

2) Delimitation proposal

The priority objective of the delimitation proposal for the Estrie–Centre-du-Québec region is to correct the exceptional situation of two divisions of the region, while paying special attention to respecting the boundaries of the regional county municipalities and the administrative regions.

It is proposed to modify the eastern boundary of the electoral division of Nicolet-Yamaska in order to increase its number of electors and, in so doing, to prevent this division from finding itself in an exceptional situation. All of the municipalities that make up the regional county municipality of Bécancour are now gathered within this division. The name that has been proposed for this division is “Nicolet-Bécancour”. As for the municipalities of Inverness, Laurierville, Lyster, Notre-Dame-de-Lourdes, Saint-Pierre-Baptiste and Sainte-Sophie-d’Halifax, they are added to the proposed division of Arthabaska in order to bring together in one division the majority of electors who are part of the regional county municipality of L’Érable.

Another change consists of increasing the number of electors of the electoral division of Mégantic-Compton so that this division no longer has an exceptional negative deviation. It is proposed to modify this division’s boundary to the southwest and to add to it certain municipalities, including those of Coaticook and Compton. As a result, almost all of the municipalities of the regional county municipality of Coaticook are integrated in the proposed division of Mégantic-Compton.

A consequence of this proposal is to move the electoral division of Saint-François northward. It now includes the municipalities of Ascot Corner, Stoke and Waterville as well as three boroughs of the Ville de Sherbrooke: Brompton, Fleurimont and Lennoxville.

The division of Orford is also re-delimited. The municipalities of Barnston-Ouest and Stanstead-Est are withdrawn, as is the Canton d’Orford, which gives the division a number of electors closer to the provincial average. The name that has been proposed for this division is “Memphrémagog”.

It is also proposed to re-delimit the division of Johnson along a north-south axis rather than an east-west axis. In its southern part, this division notably brings together the municipalities of Acton Vale, Roxton Pond and Waterloo. In its northern part, it comprises most of the municipalities located in the suburbs of the Ville de Drummondville, including those of Saint-Germain-de-Grantham and Saint-Cyrille-de-Wendover. The division spans only two administrative regions, namely those of Centre-du-Québec and La Montérégie. This new delimitation of the division of Johnson has an impact on that of Richmond. It is proposed to add to this latter division certain municipalities in its southwestern part, including those of Orford, Valcourt and Windsor. Thus, the proposed division of Richmond respects the boundary of the administrative regions of Estrie and of Montérégie.

The delimitation of the electoral division of Drummond has been changed to comprise only the Ville de Drummondville. As a result, it has a deviation of +15.7% of the number of electors from the provincial average and thus does not find itself in an exceptional situation.

Finally, the division of Sherbrooke remains unchanged and comprises the boroughs of Jacques-Cartier and Mont-Bellevue of the Ville de Sherbrooke.

3) Description of the proposed electoral divisions

Proposed electoral divisions	Electors as of November 30, 2007

3.7 Gaspésie et Îles-de-la-Madeleine

1) Portrait of the situation

Current electoral divisions (2001)	Electors as of November 30, 2007
	Number	Deviation
Bonaventure	28,908	-36.1%
Gaspé	27,569	-39.0%
Îles-de-la-Madeleine	10,600	-76.6%
Matane	27,904	-38.3%
Matapédia	29,773	-34.1%
Provincial average	45,207	-
Minimum limit (-25%)	33,905	-
Maximum limit (+25%)	56,509	-

The Gaspésie region comprises four electoral divisions and has witnessed a decline of its electoral population on the order of 1.7% since 2000. This is the lowest regional growth rate in Québec, behind that of the Côte-Nord region. Considering the province's growth rate during the same period, which stood at 5.8%, the Gaspésie region has seen its demographic weight dwindle within Québec. With its four electoral divisions, this region has a number of divisions that does not correspond to its demographic weight.

The Gaspésie region saw its average deviation of the number of electors per division rise from -22.7% in 1992 to -32.0% in 2000. As of November 30, 2007, the average deviation per division is -36.9%. Over the years, the Gaspésie region has become the most over-represented region of the province. According to the Institut de la statistique du Québec, the demographic outlook is not much more promising over the next few years.

This downward population trend has been observed in each of the region's electoral divisions. The four divisions were already in an exceptional situation in 2000 and have seen their deviation of the number of electors from the provincial average grow further since then. The electoral division of Gaspé is the most problematic with a growth rate of its electoral population of -4.9% since 2000. For their part, the divisions of Bonaventure, Matane and Matapédia have witnessed a growth rate of their electoral population ranging from -1.2% to 0.1%.

Finally, the island territory of Îles-de-la-Madeleine completes the region’s profile. The Election Act stipulates that Îles-de-la-Madeleine is an electoral division.

2) Delimitation proposal

The delimitation proposal for the Gaspésie region provides for a redrawing of the boundaries of all of the divisions. It is proposed that this region have three electoral divisions, instead of four, in order to obtain a number of electors per division which respects the numerical criterion of the Election Act. The number of divisions of this region thus better corresponds to its demographic weight within Québec. However, the average deviation of the number of electors per division, which is -15.8%, remains below that of the provincial average.

The proposal consists of separating the northern part from the southern part of the current division of Gaspé and annexing them to the divisions of Matane and Bonaventure. The electoral division of Matane henceforth includes the municipalities that make up the regional county municipality of La Côte-de-Gaspé, including the Ville de Gaspé. The name that has been proposed for this new division is “Matane-Gaspé”. The electoral division of Bonaventure now comprises all the municipalities of the regional county municipality of Rocher-Percé, including the towns of Chandler and Percé. The name that has been proposed for this division is “Bonaventure-Percé”.

Finally, the territory of the current division of Matapédia is expanded to the north and now comprises the municipalities of Baie-des-Sables, Saint-Léandre, Sainte-Paule and Saint-Ulric. To the southeast, its territory is extended up to the Municipalité de Pointe-à-la-Croix. This new division is named “Matapédia-Mitis”.

The Île-de-Montréal region represents the most populous pole of the province of Québec: it has more than 1.2 million electors, with the latter being distributed over 28 electoral divisions. The electoral population of the Island of Montréal has stagnated since 2000, posting a growth rate of 0.0%. This rate is well below those posted in the peri-urban rings to the north and south of the island, namely in the Laurentides-Lanaudière, Laval and Montérégie regions. These three regions have benefited from a major shift of electors from Montréal.

All in all, the electoral divisions included on the Island of Montréal are very balanced. Of the 28 divisions, none has a number of electors that is very close to the minimum or maximum limits permitted under the Election Act. Consequently, at the present time, the region comprises no division in an exceptional situation or likely to find itself in such a situation over the medium term.

The deviations of the number of electors from the provincial average all vary from -13.7% to +17.1%. The division whose number of electors is the lowest is that of Notre-Dame-de-Grâce, while the division of Nelligan has the highest number of electors. Finally, the number of divisions found on the Island of Montréal corresponds well to its demographic weight within the province.

2) Delimitation proposal

The delimitation proposal for the Île-de-Montréal region suggests only minor changes, as the global portrait of the divisions is already well balanced. Moreover, the current delimitation respects in large part the existing administrative boundaries, namely those of the boroughs of the Ville de Montréal and those of the reconstituted municipalities. It is important to recall that major changes had already been made on the Island of Montréal during the 2001 revision of the electoral map.

The purpose of the proposed changes is to adjust certain boundaries of divisions to ensure that they better respect administrative boundaries, while retaining their numerical balance.

It is proposed to include the entire territory of the Town of Kirkland in a single division, namely that of Jacques-Cartier. The territory of the borough of LaSalle corresponds in full to the division of Marguerite-Bourgeoys. Finally, the borough of Le Sud-Ouest is also consolidated within a single division, namely that of Saint-Henri–Sainte-Anne.

Minimum limit (-25%)	33,905	-
Maximum limit (+25%)	56,509	-

The Laurentides-Lanaudière region has witnessed by far the biggest growth rate of Québec since 2000. The electoral population has increased by 16.9%, which is superior to the Montérégie region which posted the second highest growth rate, namely 9.2%. During this period, the electoral population of the province witnessed a growth on the order of 5.8%. Consequently, the demographic weight of the Laurentides-Lanaudière has increased significantly within Québec. According to the Institut de la statistique du Québec, this region should continue to grow at a rapid pace in the years to come.

This regional demographic growth has been observed in each of the region's fourteen divisions. Indeed, they have all posted a growth rate of their electoral population superior to that of the province since 2000. The growth rates observed vary from 7.2% to 34.4%.

The most urban zone of the Laurentides-Lanaudière region is situated in its southern part and forms a ring that surrounds the regions of Laval and Île-de-Montréal. From west to east, there are a number of poles, including the municipalities of Lachute, Saint-Eustache, Blainville, Terrebonne, Repentigny and Joliette, with the latter municipality being situated a little further north. It is within this peri-urban ring that are found two of the region's three electoral divisions in an exceptional situation. The electoral division of Masson has a number of electors that significantly exceeds the maximum limit permitted under the Election Act. This division has the region's highest deviation of the number of electors from the provincial average, namely +34.4%. This division currently comprises the towns of Charlemagne and Mascouche as well as the northern parts of the towns of Repentigny and Terrebonne. The second division that finds itself in an exceptional situation is L'Assomption. It is situated immediately to the east of the division of Masson and includes the Ville de Repentigny, the Paroisse de Saint-Sulpice as well as the southern part of the Ville de L'Assomption. The deviation of the number of electors from the provincial average for this division is +26.4%.

Two other divisions also deserve special attention within this ring. The divisions of Blainville and Terrebonne respectively have a deviation from the provincial average of +24.2% and +24.4% and succeed one another to the west of the division of Masson. They are rapidly heading toward an exceptional positive deviation, given the fact that they have posted a high growth rate of their electoral population since 2000, a rate exceeding 21%.

Beyond this peri-urban ring, there are urban poles of lesser importance. Among them, one finds notably the towns of Saint-Jérôme and Mont-Tremblant. The region's third division in an exceptional situation comprises the towns of Saint-Jérôme and Prévost. It is the electoral division of Prévost, which has a deviation from the provincial average of +28.1%. Like the other two divisions having an exceptional positive deviation, its number of electors must be reduced in order to respect the numerical criterion of the Election Act.

Finally, other electoral divisions whose number of electors is not quite as close to the maximum limit permitted under the Act deserve attention all the same. The more rural divisions of Berthier, Bertrand and Rousseau surround the electoral division of Joliette and have experienced a growth rate of their electoral population that has varied from 9.9% to 19.9% since 2000. The deviation of their number of electors from the provincial average risks exceeding the maximum limit of +25% in the years to come.

With its fourteen electoral divisions, the Laurentides-Lanaudière region has a number of divisions that does not correspond to its demographic weight and that is why several divisions currently have a very high number of electors. As in the case of the Laval and Montérégie regions, this region is under-represented in relation to the other regions of Québec.

2) Delimitation proposal

The delimitation proposal for the Laurentides-Lanaudière region provides for a major revamping of the boundaries of its divisions, characterized by the addition of a fifteenth division, for which the proposed name is "La Plaine". This division is formed from parts of the current divisions of Blainville, Masson and Rousseau.

The new division of La Plaine comprises the municipalities of Sainte-Anne-des-Plaines, Saint-Calixte, Saint-Lin-Laurentides and Sainte-Sophie as well as the northern part of the Ville de Terrebonne. This division makes it possible to decrease the deviation of the number of electors from the provincial average of the division of Masson below the maximum limit of +25%, while taking some of the pressure off the division of Blainville, which is very close to the limit.

The proposed division of Blainville no longer comprises the Ville de Sainte-Anne-des-Plaines and henceforth has a deviation from the provincial average of +3.3%. The division of Masson is moved slightly eastward. It now comprises the Ville de Mascouche, the part of the Ville de Repentigny situated to the north of the rivière L'Assomption as well as the part of the Ville de Terrebonne, coming from the electoral division of Terrebonne. The deviation from the provincial average of the proposed division of Masson no longer exceeds the maximum limit permitted under the Act and stands at +7.1%. The division of Terrebonne has also been improved, for its number of electors has been reduced and is closer to the provincial average. Its deviation from the provincial average is +10.0%.

The objective of another change is to modify the boundary of the division of L'Assomption in order to decrease its number of electors and to correct its exceptional situation. The southern part of the Ville de L'Assomption has been withdrawn from this division and that explains why the proposed name of this division is "Repentigny". Moreover, the Ville de Charlemagne is added to this division.

Under the proposal, the boundary of the electoral division of Prévost has also been redrawn since the division's number of electors exceeds the maximum limit permitted under the Act. The Ville de Prévost has been withdrawn from the electoral division of Prévost and has been added to that of Bertrand. The proposed name for this new division is "Saint-Jérôme" since it henceforth only comprises the Ville de Saint-Jérôme.

Other changes round off the delimitation proposal for the region. The division of Rousseau is restructured in a north-south axis and runs, in large part, along route 125. This division also comprises in its southern part the Ville de L'Assomption. The boundary that the proposed division of Rousseau shares with that of Bertrand now respects the administrative boundary of the regions of Laurentides and Lanaudière.

Finally, it is proposed to add to the electoral division of Berthier the Municipalité de Sainte-Marcelline-de-Kildare to respect the boundaries of the regional county municipality in this sector. Similarly, the division of Joliette now comprises the Municipalité de Sainte-Mélanie.

As for the electoral divisions of Argenteuil, Deux-Montagnes, Groulx, Labelle and Mirabel, they have remained the same.

1) Portrait of the situation

Current electoral divisions (2001)	Electors as of November 30, 2007
	Number	Deviation
Chomedey	55,026	+21.7%
Fabre	58,591	+29.6%
Laval-des-Rapides	48,429	+7.1%
Mille-Îles	55,081	+21.8%
Vimont	55,744	+23.3%
Provincial average	45,207	-
Minimum limit (-25%)	33,905	-
Maximum limit (+25%)	56,509	-

The Laval region, which corresponds to the Ville de Laval, currently has five electoral divisions. It is a region experiencing strong growth, just like those of Laurentides-Lanaudière and Montérégie. It also has the second highest population density in Québec, namely more than 1,500 inhabitants per square kilometre.

The Laval region has witnessed a growth rate of its electoral population of 8.9% since 2000. This growth is superior to that of Québec, which has been on the order of 5.8%. The region's demographic weight has continued to grow within the province. With an average deviation of the number of electors per electoral division of +20.7%, the Laval region is the most under-represented region of Québec, ahead of the Laurentides-Lanaudière and Montérégie regions. According to the Institut de la statistique du Québec, the Laval region should continue to grow at a faster pace than that of the province in the years to come.

The Laval region currently comprises one electoral division in an exceptional situation. Indeed, the electoral division of Fabre has a number of electors that far exceeds the maximum limit permitted under the Election Act. This division has witnessed the strongest growth of its electoral population in the region since 2000, namely a rate of 16.1%. As a result, the delimitation of this electoral division must be revamped.

The electoral division of Fabre is bordered by two other electoral divisions whose deviation of the number of electors from the provincial average is high, namely the divisions of Chomedey and Vimont. This latter division, with a deviation from the provincial average of +23.3%, is also headed toward an exceptional situation given that it has witnessed a very strong growth on the order of 15.3% since 2000. As for the electoral division of Chomedey, it has experienced weaker growth on the order of 4.9% since 2000. Its deviation from the provincial average of +21.7% should not increase further in the years to come.

The division of Mille-Îles also has a high deviation of the number of electors from the provincial average, namely +21.8% and its growth has been slightly greater than that of the province since 2000. The only electoral division of the region whose number of electors is near the provincial average is that of Laval-des-Rapides. The growth of its electoral population has been low since 2000: it has posted a rate of 1.1%.

2) Delimitation proposal

The delimitation proposal for the Laval region provides for changes to the boundaries of all of the electoral divisions. The addition of a sixth division is proposed in order to obtain a number of electors per division that would be closer to the provincial average. The number of divisions for the Laval region thus corresponds to its demographic weight within Québec.

The delimitation of the Laval region in six electoral divisions draws much of its inspiration from the delimitation of the six administrative regions of the Ville de Laval.

The new division, for which the name of “Marc-Aurèle-Fortin” has been proposed, is formed from parts of the divisions of Fabre and Vimont. This proposal makes it possible to considerably reduce the number of electors of these two divisions, which have witnessed the strongest growth in the region since 2000.

The western boundary of the division of Mille-Îles is now based on the avenue Papineau and the autoroute Papineau (autoroute 19). It is proposed to add to the electoral division of Fabre a residential neighbourhood located immediately to the east of the autoroute Chomedey (autoroute 13) in order to reduce the deviation of the number of electors from the provincial average of the electoral division of Chomedey. Finally, the delimitation of the electoral division of Laval-des-Rapides is henceforth based on the autoroute Papineau (autoroute 19) to the east.

3.11 Mauricie

1) Portrait of the situation

Current electoral divisions (2001)	Electors as of November 30, 2007
	Number	Deviation
Champlain	46,981	+3.9%
Lavolette	34,213	-24.3%
Maskinongé	49,539	+9.6%
Saint-Maurice	36,432	-19.4%
Trois-Rivières	37,747	-16.5%
Provincial average	45,207	-
Minimum limit (-25%)	33,905	-
Maximum limit (+25%)	56,509	-

The Mauricie region has five electoral divisions. It is mainly organized around the urban poles of the towns of Shawinigan and Trois-Rivières. These two towns alone account for close to 70% of the electoral population of Mauricie, which represents more than 142,000 electors. All of the remaining urban centres total less than 10,000 electors and are spread out over the regional county municipality of Les Chenaux and that of Maskinongé as well as along the route 155 in a northern direction.

The Mauricie region has witnessed a growth of its electoral population on the order of 3.1% since 2000. However, this growth is less than that observed in Québec for the same period, namely 5.8%. The region has gradually seen its demographic weight decline within the province.

Four of the five electoral divisions have recorded a growth of their electoral population that is below the provincial growth. These are the divisions of Lavolette, Saint-Maurice and Trois-Rivières as well as the electoral division of Champlain, albeit to a lesser extent. Moreover, according to the Institut de la statistique du Québec, this region will enter a negative growth phase in the years to come.

The division of Lavolette is the only one in the region that has seen its electoral population begin to decline since 2000. It has witnessed a growth rate of -0.1%. As the deviation of its number of electors from the provincial average is -24.3%, the electoral division of Lavolette warrants special attention since, over the short term, it will no longer respect the numerical criterion of the Election Act.

The division of Maskinongé is the only one in the region which has seen a growth of its electoral population greater than that of Québec. It has posted a growth rate of 7.0% since 2000. This increase has basically occurred in the western part of the Ville de Trois-Rivières. This is also the division having the greatest number of electors.

2) Delimitation proposal

The delimitation proposal for the Mauricie region provides for changes to the boundaries of three electoral divisions. The first change consists of increasing the number of electors of the division of Lavolette to prevent this division from soon finding itself in an exceptional situation. The municipalities of Lac-aux-Sables and Notre-Dame-de-Montauban have been added to the electoral division of Laviolette. Situated in the current division of Portneuf, these two municipalities are part of the regional county municipality of Mékinac and the administrative region of Mauricie. All of the municipalities of the regional county municipality of Mékinac are thus included in the proposed division of Laviolette. In addition, the boundary of this division now corresponds to the boundary of the administrative region of Mauricie.

It is also proposed to increase the number of electors of the electoral division of Trois-Rivières by modifying the boundary that it shares with the electoral division of Maskinongé. With this change, the two divisions are better balanced. Moreover, the boundary between the divisions of Maskinongé and Trois-Rivières no longer corresponds to the municipal limit which use to separate the former Ville de Trois-Rivières from the former municipalities of Pointe-du-Lac and Trois-Rivières-Ouest.

In this proposal, the electoral divisions of Champlain and Saint-Maurice remain unchanged.

3) Description of the proposed electoral divisions

Proposed electoral divisions	Electors as of November 30, 2007

Champlain	46,981	+3.9%
Laviolette	36,031	-20.3%

Saint-Maurice	36,432	-19.4%
Trois-Rivières	44,785	-0.9%
Provincial average	45,207	–
Minimum limit (-25%)	33,905	–
Maximum limit (+25%)	56,509	–

The Montérégie region currently has 21 electoral divisions and has witnessed a major increase in its electoral population in recent years. Indeed, it is the region that has posted the greatest growth rate (9.2%) since 2000, behind the Laurentides-Lanaudière region. According to the Institut de la statistique du Québec, the Montérégie region will continue to grow at a similar pace over the next few years.

The Montérégie region is also the second most populous region of Québec. Its densest urban zone is situated on the south shore of the fleuve Saint-Laurent, opposite the Island of Montréal. It is the conurbation formed by the towns of Sainte-Catherine, Saint-Constant, Delson, Candiac, La Prairie, Brossard, Saint-Lambert, Longueuil and Boucherville. More than 333,000 electors reside here, namely about one-third of the region's electoral population.

Situated at the heart of this sector, the electoral divisions of Laporte, Marie-Victorin and Taillon correspond to the urban core of Longueuil. The electoral division of Taillon has witnessed a growth of its electoral population similar to that of the province since 2000, whereas those of Laporte and Marie-Victorin have had a much weaker growth. The electoral division of Taillon stands out with a very high deviation of its number of electors from the provincial average, namely +23.4%. It risks seeing its number of electors soon exceed the maximum limit of +25% permitted under the Election Act if no change is made.

It is around this urban core that a few of the region's most populous and quickly growing electoral divisions are found. Among these, the division of La Prairie currently has a number of electors that exceeds the maximum limit permitted under the Act and that puts the division in an exceptional situation.

On both sides of the division of La Prairie, there are two other divisions that deserve special attention. The division of Châteauguay has seen its number of electors climb very close to the maximum limit permitted under the Act and its deviation from the provincial average currently stands at +24.4%. To the east of the division of La Prairie, the division of La Pinière has a deviation from the provincial average of +18.6%. Its electoral population has risen considerably since 2000: the growth rate reaches 10.5% here.

Beyond this first ring of suburbs, there are also other urban poles located at various distances and some of which may be considered suburbs of Longueuil and Montréal. These notably include the towns of Vaudreuil-Dorion, Châteauguay, Saint-Jean-sur-Richelieu, Chambly, Saint-Bruno-de-Montarville, Saint-Basile-le-Grand, Sainte-Julie, Beloeil, Mont-Saint-Hilaire, Granby, Saint-Hyacinthe and Sorel-Tracy, which also represent about one-third of the region's electoral population.

The second division that finds itself in an exceptional situation in the Montérégie region is located in the second ring of suburbs. It is the division of Chambly. Due to a deviation of its number of electors from the provincial average that is far too great, namely +32.6%, and a growth rate of 14.4% since 2000, this division's boundaries need to be re-examined.

The division of Saint-Jean is situated directly to the south of that of Chambly and its growth has been just as substantial. As this division has a deviation from the provincial average of +22.7%, it is quite possible that its number of electors will soon exceed the maximum limit permitted under the Election Act.

The division of Shefford is located outside the area of influence of Montréal, but it has also witnessed a growth that is far superior to that of the province. Organized around the pole of the Ville de Granby, this division has a very high deviation from the provincial average, namely +22.2%. It will soon find itself in an exceptional situation.

Finally, with its 21 electoral divisions, the Montérégie region has a number of divisions that does not correspond to its demographic weight. As in the case of the Laurentides-Lanaudière and Laval regions, the Montérégie region is currently under-represented in comparison with the other regions of Québec.

2) Delimitation proposal

First, the delimitation proposal for the Montérégie region provides for the addition of a twenty-second division. This new division, for which the proposed name is “Roussillon”, is basically formed from parts of the divisions of Châteauguay and La Prairie.

The addition of the new division of Roussillon involves the conurbation of Longueuil within the first ring of suburbs of the region. This new division comprises the municipalities of Sainte-Catherine, Saint-Constant, Saint-Mathieu, Saint-Michel and Saint-Rémi. This addition corrects the exceptional situation of the division of La Prairie by reducing its number of electors considerably. The same may be said for the division of Châteauguay, which henceforth has a number of electors close to the provincial average. As for the division of La Pinière, it remains unchanged and corresponds in its entirety to the Ville de Brossard.

Within the Ville de Longueuil, it is proposed to modify the boundary between the divisions of Marie-Victorin and Taillon in order to reduce the number of electors of this latter division. The proposed division of Taillon now comprises the part of the borough of Vieux-Longueuil situated to the northeast of the chemin de Chambly.

Changes are also proposed within the second ring of suburbs. The division of Chambly has been changed to reduce its number of electors and to correct its exceptional situation. The municipalities of Richelieu and Saint-Mathias-sur-Richelieu have been withdrawn from this division and have been added to that of Iberville.

It is also proposed to withdraw the Municipalité de Saint-Blaise-sur-Richelieu from the division of Saint-Jean and to add it to that of Huntingdon. This change reduces the number of electors of the electoral division of Saint-Jean preventing it from rapidly finding itself in an exceptional situation.

Finally, another change concerns the division of Shefford, which is about to find itself in an exceptional situation. To avoid such a development, the division has been re-delimited to only comprise the Ville de Granby. The name that has been proposed for this division is “Granby”. As for the municipalities of Waterloo, Shefford and Warden, they are added to the electoral division of Johnson, which is presented in the Estrie–Centre-du-Québec region.

1) Portrait of the situation

Current electoral divisions (2001)	Electors as of November 30, 2007
	Number	Deviation
Chapleau	52,992	+17.2%
Gatineau	48,858	+8.1%
Hull	48,197	+6.6%
Papineau	54,695	+21.0%
Pontiac	45,982	+1.7%
Provincial average	45,207	-
Minimum limit (-25%)	33,905	-
Maximum limit (+25%)	56,509	-

The Outaouais region has five electoral divisions and its electoral population has witnessed substantial growth since 2000. It has posted a growth rate of 9.0%, which is far superior to Québec's growth rate, namely 5.8%. As a result, the region's demographic weight has risen within the province. According to the Institut de la statistique du Québec, this region should see its sustained growth continue in the years to come.

The Outaouais region is mainly organized around the urban pole of the Ville de Gatineau. This city has a population of 175,000 electors, which corresponds to 70% of the region's entire electoral population. Each of the five electoral divisions currently comprises a part of the territory of the Ville de Gatineau.

The three most rural electoral divisions of the Outaouais have seen the greatest growth in the region, mainly attributable to the development of the suburbs around the Ville de Gatineau. These are the divisions of Gatineau, Papineau and Pontiac. They have posted a growth rate of their electoral population varying from 11.6% to 13.4% since 2000. The electoral divisions of Gatineau and Pontiac have a total number of electors that is close to the provincial average. As for the division of Papineau, it is more problematic, since the deviation of its number of electors from the provincial average is +21.0%. It will be in an exceptional situation if no change is made.

The region's two most urban divisions, namely those of Chapleau and Hull, have experienced more limited growth since 2000. The electoral division of Hull has a number of electors close to the provincial average and has witnessed a growth rate of its population of 2.7%, hence below that of the province (5.8%). The electoral division of Chapleau posts a bigger deviation from the provincial average, namely +17.2%, and has had a growth rate similar to that of Québec since 2000, namely 6.3%.

2) Delimitation proposal

The delimitation proposal for the Outaouais region provides for a few changes for each of the five electoral divisions.

It is first proposed to re-delimit the division of Papineau to avoid it rapidly finding itself with an exceptional positive deviation. The Municipalité de Val-des-Monts has been withdrawn from this division and has been added to that of Gatineau. The deviation of the number of electors from the provincial average of the proposed division of Papineau is 15.8%.

It is also proposed to withdraw from the division of Gatineau the southernmost urban part of its territory, within the Ville de Gatineau. The southern limit of the proposed division of Gatineau coincides with the ruisseau Desjardins and the sector in question is added to the division of Chapleau.

In addition, the boundary between the divisions of Chapleau and Papineau has been slightly altered so that the electoral division of Chapleau retains a number of electors that respects the numerical criterion of the Election Act.

A last change concerns the boundary between the divisions of Hull and Pontiac. The division of Hull is expanded to the west in such a way as to comprise the residential neighbourhoods that currently overlap the boundary between these two divisions. This notably involves the residential neighbourhood being developed, located immediately to the north of the boulevard de l'Outaouais. With this change, the proposed boundary no longer corresponds to the municipal limit which use to separate the former towns of Aylmer and Hull.

3.14 Saguenay–Lac-Saint-Jean

1) Portrait of the situation

Current electoral divisions (2001)	Electors as of November 30, 2007
	Number	Deviation
Chicoutimi	46,114	+2.0%
Dubuc	37,412	-17.2%
Jonquière	43,964	-2.8%
Lac-Saint-Jean	41,505	-8.2%
Roberval	44,827	-0.8%
Provincial average	45,207	-
Minimum limit (-25%)	33,905	-
Maximum limit (+25%)	56,509	-

The Saguenay–Lac-Saint-Jean region has five electoral divisions, which cover a vast territory of more than 100,000 square kilometres. The entire population resides mainly near the rivière Saguenay and the lac Saint-Jean, and the Ville de Saguenay acts as the main pole of the region with its some 113,000 electors.

The region's electoral population has declined since 2000. Its growth rate is -0.6%, which is well below the growth rate posted for the province during the same period (5.8%). According to the Institut de la statistique du Québec, the Saguenay–Lac-Saint-Jean region should continue to experience negative growth over the next few years. Its demographic weight within Québec will tend to decline.

The region's five electoral divisions have experienced a growth rate of their electoral population below that of the province since 2000. The electoral division of Chicoutimi posted the lowest growth rate, namely -1.9%, while the electoral division of Lac-Saint-Jean had the highest rate, namely 1.7%. Despite this fact, four of the five divisions today have a number of electors that is close to the provincial average. They are the divisions of Chicoutimi, Jonquière, Lac-Saint-Jean and Roberval, whose deviation of the number of electors from the provincial average varies from -8.2% to +2.0%.

The only electoral division whose number of electors is low in comparison with the provincial average is that of Dubuc. It currently posts a deviation from the provincial average of -17.2%. Due to the negative growth of its electoral population, the number of electors of the division of Dubuc will be nearing the minimum limit permitted under the Election Act in the years to come if no change is made.

2) Delimitation proposal

The delimitation proposal for the Saguenay–Lac-Saint-Jean region entails certain changes that basically concern the divisions of Chicoutimi and Dubuc. The changes are proposed in order to adjust wherever possible the boundaries of the divisions to the boundaries of the boroughs of the Ville de Saguenay. Special attention has also been paid to the electoral division of Dubuc.

It is proposed that the division of Chicoutimi be enlarged in its southern part in order to include the entire part of the borough of Chicoutimi situated to the south of the rivière Saguenay. The part of this borough situated to the north of the rivière Saguenay is added to the electoral division of Dubuc. This change allows the division of Dubuc to comprise a number of electors closer to the provincial average. It also results in the addition of the Municipalité de Petit-Saguenay to the electoral division of René-Lévesque, in the Côte-Nord region, in order to increase the number of electors.

Similarly, the proposed division of Jonquière now comprises only the part of the borough of Jonquière situated to the south of the rivière Saguenay. This change does affect any elector.

Finally, it is proposed to slightly enlarge the electoral division of Roberval to the north of the locality of Sainte-Élisabeth-de-Proulx, in the unorganized territory of Chute-des-Passes. This last change makes it possible to add to the proposed division of Roberval the township of Hudon, which is closely linked to the locality of Sainte-Élisabeth-de-Proulx.

CONCLUSION

With the tabling of this preliminary report in the National Assembly, the Commission de la représentation électorale is taking the necessary steps, effective immediately, to ensure the broadest possible dissemination of the new electoral map delimitation proposal. It should be noted that the Commission will hold public hearings in various regions of Québec beginning in April 2008.

The members of the Commission place great importance on this next step of their mandate. On the one hand, the public hearings will allow the Commission to learn more about the regional realities of Québec and to better understand them. On the other hand, the comments and suggestions made will, as the case may be, contribute to improving the new electoral map.

Indeed, the Commission expects that this delimitation will give rise to extensive reflections. This proposal implies major changes which, in some cases, will considerably alter the electoral portrait of certain regions.

In the opinion of the Commission, such changes have become inevitable in 2008. They aim to better respect the equality of the votes of electors, which is one of the essential prerequisites of the principle of effective representation. The analysis of the situation has clearly shown the extent of the inequalities in representation between some regions of Québec. Moreover, everything suggests that these equalities will only grow in the years to come.

The Commission will carefully analyze the representations submitted by Members of the National Assembly, individuals and organizations. Insofar as the criteria prescribed by the Election Act are respected, the Commission will take these representations into account when it revises the new electoral map delimitation proposal.

The Commission de la représentation électorale reiterates its invitation to Members of the National Assembly, individuals and organizations to make known their views during the public hearings by tabling a brief or by making an oral presentation. In addition, the Commission invites interested individuals to contact it by mail, e-mail or telephone.

Appendix IV

Comparison of the numerical criterion permitted in Québec with those permitted in the other Canadian provinces and in Canada

Provinces	Numerical criterion permitted by the Act
Québec	+/-25%
Alberta	+/-25%
British Columbia	+/-25%
Prince Edward Island	+/-25%
Manitoba ¹	+/-10%
New Brunswick	+/-10%
Nova Scotia	+/-25%
Ontario ²	+/-25%
Saskatchewan ³	+/-5%
Newfoundland and Labrador	+/-10%
Canada	+/-25%

1 The Act stipulates that for the electoral divisions situated partially or completely to the north of the 53rd parallel, the deviation permitted from the provincial average is +/-25%.

2 The eleven electoral divisions in Northern Ontario are identical (except for a minor revision of the boundaries) to those that existed at the federal level on October 2, 2003 and the 96 divisions in the south are identical to the federal divisions, as they existed on September 1, 2004.

3 The Act stipulates that the +/-5% deviation permitted from the provincial average only applies to the electoral divisions situated to the south of the demarcation line. The two divisions situated to the north of this demarcation line are not required to abide by this numerical criterion.
